TRANSYLVANIA UNIVERSITY

1798-1908

RICH in the history, traditions, and experiences of a hundred years, Transylvania University, the first institution of higher learning West of the Alleghanies, preserver of learning in the pioneer commonwealth, guardian of ideals for character and culture, passes her treasures on through Kentucky University to the new Transylvania. And with high purpose and strong determination this beneficent institution, facing new conditions and equipped to meet new needs, is preparing her sons and daughters for larger service to the Commonwealth and the Nation.

THE HONOR SYSTEM

A SPIRIT of devotion to work, a love of fair play, and a high sense of personal honor characterize in an unusual degree the students of Transylvania University. To them belongs the distinction of introducing into Kentucky the Honor System in examinations. Several years ago, in mass meeting, they expressed their willingness to relieve the Faculty of responsibility for serveillance in examinations and for discipline of any student guilty of dishonesty. The duty, voluntarily assumed, has been faithfully executed. Violations of the examination pledge have been extremely rare; but in every instance the culprit has withdrawn from the University without need of faculty action. The spirit of truth and honor fostered in the examination room pervades every phase of student life.

TRUE ELOQUENCE

TRUE eloquence, indeed, does not consist in speech. It cannot be brought from far. Labor and learning may toil for it, but they will toil in vain.

Words and phases may be marshaled in every way, but they cannot compass it. It must exist in the man, in the subject, and in the occasion. Affected passion, intense expression, the pomp of declamation, all may aspire after it, but cannot reach it. It comes, if it comes at all, like the outbreaking of a fountain from the earth, or the bursting forth of volcanic fires, with spontaneous, original, native force.

TRUE ELOQUENCE

CRAIG HALL

"We may live without poetry, music and art;
We may live without conscience, and live without heart;
We may live without friends; we may live without books;
But civilized man cannot live without cooks.

* * * * *

He may live without love,—what is passion but pining?
But where is the man that can live without dining?"

"Now blessings light on him that first invented this same sleep! It covers a man all over, thoughts and all, like a cloak. * * * It is the current coin that purchases all the pleasures of the world, cheap, and the balance that sets the king and the shepherd, the fool and the wise man, even."

CHEAPSIDE, COUNTY COURT DAY

"Hardly more characteristic of the Athenian was the agora, or the forum of the Roman, than is county court day characteristic of the Kentuckian. In the open square around the court house of the county seat he has had the center of his public social life, the arena of his passions and amusements, the rallying point of his political discussions, the market-place of his business transactons, the civil unit of his institutional history." — James Lane Allen.
